GENIVI to Sponsor “Collaborate or Die” Panel at 2014 International CES

Five vehicle manufacturers to discuss implications of opening the “black box” of automotive electronics hardware

SAN RAMON, Calif., - Dec 18, 2013 - The GENIVI Alliance, an automotive and consumer electronics industry association driving the development and adoption of an open In-vehicle Infotainment (IVI) reference platform, is sponsoring “Collaborate or Die” at the 2014 International CES in Las Vegas.

This panel session, part of the CES Automotive Electronics Track, will focus on the implications of opening the “black box” of automotive electronics hardware by separating the hardware from the software development, and on the alliances and other collaborative efforts facilitating these next generation systems.

Panelists will also discuss what has been learned to date, what challenges and opportunities lay ahead and will delve into the facts and realities that are promising the future of being “open.”

About GENIVI Alliance

The GENIVI Alliance is a non-profit industry association whose mission is to drive the broad adoption of an In-Vehicle Infotainment (IVI) open source development platform. GENIVI will accomplish this by aligning requirements, delivering reference implementations, offering certification programs and fostering a vibrant open source IVI community. GENIVI’s work will result in shortened development cycles, quicker time-to-market, and reduced costs for companies developing IVI equipment and software. Comprised of more than 180 member companies, GENIVI is headquartered in San Ramon, Calif. Please visit www.genivi.org for more information.
